HISTORY OF SILK

Chinese legend has it that more than 5,000 years ago Lady His-Ling-Shih plucked a cocoon from her tea-cup that had dropped from the leaves of a mulberry tree, and marveled at the fine threads unraveling. Recognizing their inherent beauty, the royal lady went on to invent the loom and cultivate the silkworm, transforming a remarkable idea into a revolutionary industry.

The thread which is produced by the spinning glands of the silkworm is the finest and strongest natural fiber in the world. Silk has been prized for its elegance, strength and comfort for centuries, and has filaments stronger than steel of the same diameter. Silk is a protein fiber, meaning that is chemically quite similar to human skin and hair. Silk has been revered for centuries for its ability to filter out negative energies , promote healing, and restore balance.

For thousands of years, silk was reserved for only the noble, emperors, and kings. Now, staplesonline.com silk and luxuries inc. brings you luxurious 100% Knit Silk garments to be worn for everyday life. 100% Knit Silk for Your Life and Luxury.

BENEFITS OF SILK

In Taoist terms, jing, qi and shen are referred to as the Three Treasures. Medically speaking, in Chinese, yi (shen) is associated with 'Heart Fire,' whereas jing is synonymous with 'Kidney Water'. When we are ill, symptoms result from disharmony within the physical body. Evidence shows that when people are injured or ill, energetically the aura they project becomes scattered and fragmented. The right clothing will improve the energy flow. Silk is particularly good at tuning into and holding a vibration. Wearing silk is like stepping into a sacred space.

The balance that exists between Heart (Fire) and Kidney (Water) is qi. The silk strand is symbolic of qi. The Chinese believe there are five directions in life, North, South, West, East and Center. Silk is said to return us to our center, where all possibility lays. Literally, silk is of the highest vibration – therefore actually raising your energy.

Without being bulky, silk cools and warms simultaneously. Silk allows your skin to breathe by keeping you dry while absorbing perspiration. Not only does silk resist soil and odor, but also dries quickly and resists wrinkles and tears.

Doctors and nurses recommend patients who have endured radiation or chemotherapy to keep a layer against their delicate skin for healing. Travelers will enjoy the ease of no bulk packing and easy washing. Menopausal women will get relief from hot flashes and night sweats. Elderly people will get relief from winter chills. Outdoor sports enthusiasts will benefit from a second skin of silk to keep you warm while playing outside. Everyone who wears silk against their skin will experience the magical difference it will make in your life.

WASHING CARE

Silk is a protein like your skin and your hair. When choosing a soap to wash your 100% knit silk garments, ask yourself, “is this safe for my skin and hair”, if the answer is “Yes”, then it is also safe for your silk. We recommend using shampoo. You can wash by hand, or you can throw your silk into the washing machine on gentle cycle. If you have a machine with fins, it is best to use a lingerie bag to protect your silk from getting caught on the fins. Hang to dry. Your silk will dry in less than 2 hours.

HAND DYED CARE

All of our seasonal colours are hand dyed with love. Every colour is original. A double rinse of vinegar and salt are used to set the colour, however, with the red tone colours, there will be some seeping. Do not worry, you can wash and wash and the colour will not fade. We recommend upon your first wash to let your silk garment soak in a sink full of water and a half a cup of vinegar to further set the colour. Do not wash dark or bright red colours with any other garment.

TESTIMONIALS

“It didn’t matter if I wore cotton, synthetic or just stayed buck naked at night – the dreaded night sweats left me feeling clammy. I heard about staplesonline.com silks from a TV show and thought I would give it a try. It was true, the silks did not prevent the night sweats (drat), but it did wick away the moisture. Where it wicked it to, I don’t know, but I am forever grateful!! These garments are a must have for home, and travel. I constantly recommend the products to anyone who has problems with sticky and clammy feelings. Keep up the good work!”

-Judy C

“I wanted to let you know I’m enjoying my latest piece of silk, a vest. I have breast cancer and am undergoing radiation therapy for 5 weeks. Your silks are the only thing I can tolerate next to my skin just now. They are wonderful. I just wanted to say ‘thanks’ and tell you they are helping me as I fight through this illness.”

-Marilyn M

“I do love your silk. I especially appreciate it now with the warm weather. I perspire a lot but the silk dries so quickly, I don’t feel sticky. And I appreciate it in winter as a perfect under layer because it provides a lot of warm without bulk or weight. They’re all season undies!”
